Opportunities abound to help and support tech4Tanzania in the month of November! Due to national elections in Tanzania, the shipping of the container of medical and computer supplies was delayed. Praise God, the election went smoothly and the government soon will begin transitioning, allowing shipment of the container. The delay created more opportunities to receive additional equipment. In the meantime, help is needed to bubble-wrap and tag the additional items. When a shipping date is confirmed, lots of willing hands will be needed to stuff the sea container. Forklifts will load heavy and bulky items but volunteers are needed to stuff every empty nook and cranny to keep contents from shifting in rough seas. Volunteers will be needed in the morning of the designated date from 8:30 to 11:30.

The beloved Cookie Walk returns to Slate Hill Saturday, December 5, from 9 till noon. It was quite a success last year, thanks to many Slate Hillers who cranked out tasty, lovely Christmas cookies by the dozens. May we count on you again? This year bakers can take advantage of free baking ingredients since tech4Tanzania received a grant to supply bakers with many ingredients! Watch for the bake table and sign up sheet in the lobby during November to take advantage of the free ingredients so all you need do is pour your heart into baking and providing cookies for the Cookie Walk. Please start researching your recipes and planning your tastiest, festive cookies now. Gluten-free cookies were welcomed by many patrons last year.

Don't forget to come out on Saturday, December 5th to purchase your holiday cookies! For a suggested donation, you can stuff supplied containers with cookies of your choice. Plan your gift list now so you can take full advantage of the Cookie Walk! Don't forget neighbors, teachers, mail personnel, beauticians, relatives, coworkers, etc. when making your list as they will appreciate the goodies. You will save a lot of time by supporting the Cookie Walk instead of doing your own holiday baking—and there will be no clean up! It's a win-win situation for all.

Please pray our work together is pleasing to God and helpful in God's efforts for peace, hope and justice for all people. Please join us in any of the above listed events. Share the joy of service together in Christ. For more information or to volunteer, contact Randy Barr at rw.barr@yahoo.com or 717-903-9698. See the website at: tech4tanzania.org.

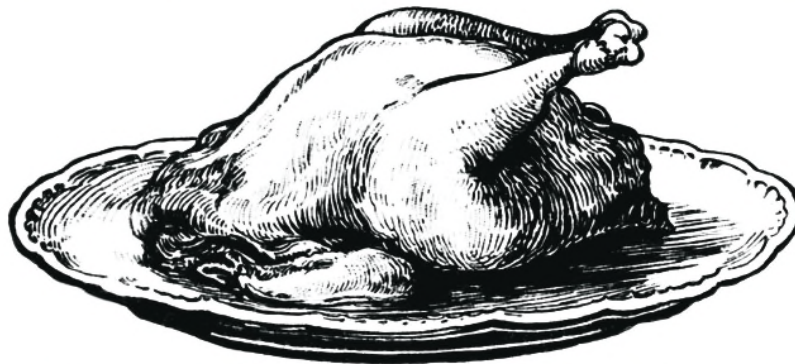

Tech4Tanzania is an interfaith humanitarian organization which endeavors to assist partners in Tanzania by enriching educational programs, enhancing medical care, and expanding occupational and service opportunities.

- supporting the maintenance of equipment sent and training in the use of the technology provided.
- facilitating study in the U.S. of our Tanzanian partners who are committed to upgrading their credentials and skills
- arranging for short-term volunteers from the U.S. to travel to Tanzania to share their educational, medical, or technical expertise and further develop our vision of partnership.

For some new ideas or reminders, check the lists below. You'll find a list for adults and a list for youth, but many of these ideas work for any age group. It's also fine to go "off the list" and follow ideas God gives you! Either way, take time on Sunday mornings to place a stone during the offering time to commemorate the opportunities God provided. This is a way to give thanks for God's provision and presence in each interaction.

Especially for adults, but open to all:

- ◆ Participate in a kit, songs, and snacks at Cumberland Vista on Nov. 6, 6:30PM
- ◆ Invite someone to your home for hot cider.
- ◆ Go Black Friday shopping with a friend.
- ◆ Share your hunting harvest with someone in need.
- ◆ Take a walk with a co-worker during your lunch hour.
- ◆ Volunteer at New Hope and connect with families or individuals in need.
- ◆ Bake a pumpkin pie for your neighbor.
- ◆ Invite someone who might be spending Thanksgiving alone this year to join you.
- ◆ Share your Thanksgiving dinner leftovers with an elderly friend, neighbor, or a recuperating friend.

Especially for youth, but open to all:

- ◆ Put a kind note in someone's locker at school.
- ◆ Find someone who is sitting alone at lunch then sit with them.
- ◆ Invite a friend or an acquaintance for pumpkin carving.
- ◆ Invite a friend or an acquaintance to your home to study for an upcoming test.

Lift Your Glad Voices!

"We want you back!" That was the refrain from both New Hope Ministries Mechanicsburg and Dillsburg to Slate Hill Mennonite, inviting folks from our church to delight their more vulnerable senior citizens with some holiday cheer. "We so consider you part of our family," said Maureen Neary from New Hope.

Each center will host a special Senior Citizens Christmas luncheon for their most impoverished senior citizens. For the past six years Slate Hill has been asked to provide the musical entertainment. Instrumentalists and kids are welcome! The tentative dates and times of these parties are as follows:

Healing Communities

On Friday, October 23rd I attended the Healing Communities Training developed by the Annie E. Casey Foundation and sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Churches. During this training I interacted directly with ministers and volunteers from several faiths including A.M.E., Baptist, Church of the Brethren, Episcopal, Methodist, Quaker, and Wicca. We focused our day on issues of mass incarceration in our society and how this impacts our entire community.

We focused much of our time on how to create a culture of support for victims, offenders, families, friends, and the community. Seven questions we reflected on are as follows:

1. Why are we so ashamed of those who commit crimes in our communities?
2. Am I ashamed of my own family member who is incarcerated? If so, what am I ashamed of?
3. Are we afraid of those in prison or who have been in prison? What are we afraid of and why?
4. How do we, as a community, move beyond shame and fear to assume the role we should be playing?
5. What can we do to be more welcoming to returning citizens and more embracing of their families?
6. Are you visiting your family member in prison? Are you visiting the people in your congregation in prison? Their family members?
7. How can we reconcile and restore those who have been in prison back into the heart of our community?

I'd welcome the opportunity to talk in more depth with anyone from Slate Hill who believes in balancing justice with mercy. How could we support both victims and offenders and their families at Slate Hill? If you've been affected by these issues in your life or would like to discuss creating a healing community at Slate Hill, please call me at 717-512-3927, or email me at tmiller17112@gmail.com.

Instant Pick-me-Up!

A sure-fire way to lift your spirits during the dark days of winter is to reach out to those who are tucked away from the mainstream.

Slate Hillers are invited to join Ulli Klemm as he visits and entertains the clients of Life Time Adult Day Care in Mechanicsburg. Catering to the elderly and those with developmental disabilities, Life Time provides compassionate care and support to its clients. Some of the clients have physical and psychological needs. Others have medical concerns, or suffer from dementia, social isolation, inactivity and the risk of falling. Care takers value being able to drop off a family member at Life Time. This enables care givers to continue to work or get a needed break while allowing Life Time participants to remain in their own families and communities.

Ulli packs his guitar and a box of props and heads over to Life Time each month. The next visit will be Monday, Dec. 21, 1:30-3:30PM. Hymns, folk songs, and funny songs are the staple of this afternoon of fun.

Life Time Adult Day Care is located at 3 Crossgate Drive, Mechanicsburg PA 17050. Crossgate Drive is a small road that is sandwiched between Denny's and T-Mobile on the Carlisle Pike. It is housed in the first floor of a two-story office building (labeled NRA).

Hats, Hats, and More Hats!!!

Many hands have busily been making hats for charity! A total of 817 hats were given to four different New Hope Ministry locations here in central PA. They will be available for distribution during the cold winter months and for Christmas. Another dozen "tiny" hats were made for Morning Star who ministers to newborns and infants.

If you wish to be part of this warm ministry, please contact Pat White. Free yarn and materials are available due to the generosity of multiple donors and yard-sale finds.

Rachel Hoover Sets Roots in Shirati

After 16 hours of plane rides and 10 hours in buses and cars, Messiah graduate and Slate Hill worshipper, Rachel Hoover, made it safely, with all luggage intact, to Shirati, Tanzania. Rachel will spend the next year utilizing her nursing major to assist where needed at the Shirati Hospital. This possibility came together with the help of Slate Hiller Dale Ressler, the Shirati Hospital and The Second Tunic. The Second Tunic is a Mennonite-rooted ministry which provides support to those who seek to serve others in the name of Christ. Ulli Klemm, also from Slate Hill, serves on a three-person care team for Rachel. Following are some notes from Rachel's recent communications with Ulli.

"It is hard for me to be in a constant state of receiving. Imani is the head of the nursing school and, with her husband, Fred, constitutes the host family I am currently staying with. She has provided food, shelter, bathing water, clean drinking water, and internet service. Serving others is where I feel I fit best and I really hope (and expect) this to happen at some point. And Swahili is most definitely the main language here! So I guess I have to kick up my language learning skills. Right now, I rely solely on non-verbal cues and sporadic English translations to be a part of daily life. I'm in the process of finding an English-Swahili dictionary so that I can learn more. I am giving myself grace in learning to like the food and learning the language. I am learning to laugh and be more patient and to embrace the slower pace of life.

"Because I do not know the Swahili language, I sometimes felt useless, powerless, and like I was a burden, and I was using so many resources. But I am feeling more productive, useful, and like I'm finally getting the hang of things. This week, I went to the hospital to orient myself in the maternity ward. We had five mothers deliver and three of them were complicated. I helped resuscitate several babies and have never been so humbled by the realization of just how powerless we humans are. I was privy to the joy of life, the sorrow of death, and the intimate experience of bringing new life into the world.

"I have had a bit of culture shock, but in the midst of it all, I've been learning that even though this culture is so different from the one I'm used to, it still works and functions within this context."

Things you probably wonder about:

- ◆ There are poisonous animals (snakes, black/green mambas).
- ◆ So far I've had an ant and a lizard make it inside my mosquito net. The ant merits a place on the list only because it was a biting ant.
- ◆ There is no running water to speak of. When it runs, we use it to fill the buckets in the bath room to rinse refuse down the toilet (no sink running water).
- ◆ I have a nice small room to myself with a door that closes, but sound disregards all barriers.
- ◆ The rainwater is collected in large tanks for our daily use. There is some hot water in the morning for showers - bucket showers.
- ◆ Electricity has been good so far. It has been going off pretty regularly, especially before it rains. But it's not been a problem.
- ◆ There are wild dogs and cats around, but no pets. Well, chickens, but they will eventually get eaten.

“God has given me a peace about the future, a peace to know that He is always there. Praise God for his presence! “

With Love and in Christ,
Rachel Hoover
